

Jill Zeller is a dynamic marketing leader who's built her career in agriculture by combining strategic thinking with a deep understanding of the people and markets she serves. As the Portfolio Marketing Leader for Land Management at Corteva Agriscience, Jill helps drive growth by managing complex product portfolios and bringing cross-functional teams together around a shared vision.

Throughout her time with Corteva and its predecessor Dow AgroSciences, Jill has played a key role in shaping strategy and launching major brands, from the Enlist Weed Control System to specialty Crops, corn herbicides, and row crop fungicides.

What truly sets Jill apart is her leadership style. She believes in transparency, trust, and teamwork, creating an environment where people feel empowered to do their best work. She's passionate about mentoring others and takes pride in helping teams and customers succeed together.

Outside of work, Jill and her husband Casey are raising their two kids on their family farm in Noblesville, Indiana. A proud Purdue alumna and former student representative on the Purdue Board of Trustees, Jill stays active in her community through volunteering with FFA, her church, and her children's school.
